Economic and Market Commentary April 2018

During the month of April, the two-year US Treasury yield rose 22 basis points to 2.49% and the benchmark 10-year Treasury yield rose 21 basis points from the end of March, to 2.95%. The 10-year also hit 3.00% during the month, the first since 2014, amid investor confidence and solid economic growth.

The U.S. economy notched another quarter of growth in Q1, growing 2.3% at a quarter-over-quarter annualized rate and 2.9% year-over-year. Compared to global peers, the U.S. continues to outperform both in terms of growth rate and total progress since the recession. Since the U.S. economy peaked 41 quarters ago, growth has rebounded and exceeded the prior peak by 16%. The unemployment rate was 4.1% in March and firms added 103,000 net, new jobs to nonfarm payrolls over the month.

In March 2017, core CPI experienced a historically large drop, driven by the “unlimited data” plans offered by many wireless phone service providers. The ensuing decline in core CPI caused many of the last 12 months’ inflation data to look depressed. However, this month, last year’s low reading dropped out of the calculation. Due to “base effects,” we saw annual measures of headline, core, and median inflation rise (2.4% year-over-year, 2.1% year-over-year, and 2.5% year-over-year, respectively). Notably, the largest component of core CPI, shelter, also picked up on the month. The 2018 March report provides more evidence that core PCE (the Fed’s favorite inflation measure) should head towards 2% this year and keep the central bank on their gradual hiking trajectory.

The International Monetary Fund released forecasts for global economic output, on course to grow 3.9% in 2018, the best year since 2011, with every major economy poised to grow for the second year in a row. In April China also released its GDP data for Q1 2018. It was the same as the last quarter, 6.8% year-over-year. China contributed more to global growth last year than the U.S., India, and the Euro Area combined. Elsewhere, the latest U.K. GDP growth numbers caught many sterling investors off-guard. The meager Q1 economic expansion of just 0.1% surprised on the negative side which weighed on interest rate rise expectations and the pound. Following the data release, the U.K. currency sold off by more than 1% against the U.S. dollar, while the market repriced the likelihood of a May rate hike by the Bank of England from over 50% to about 20%.

Florida Trust Day to Day Fund

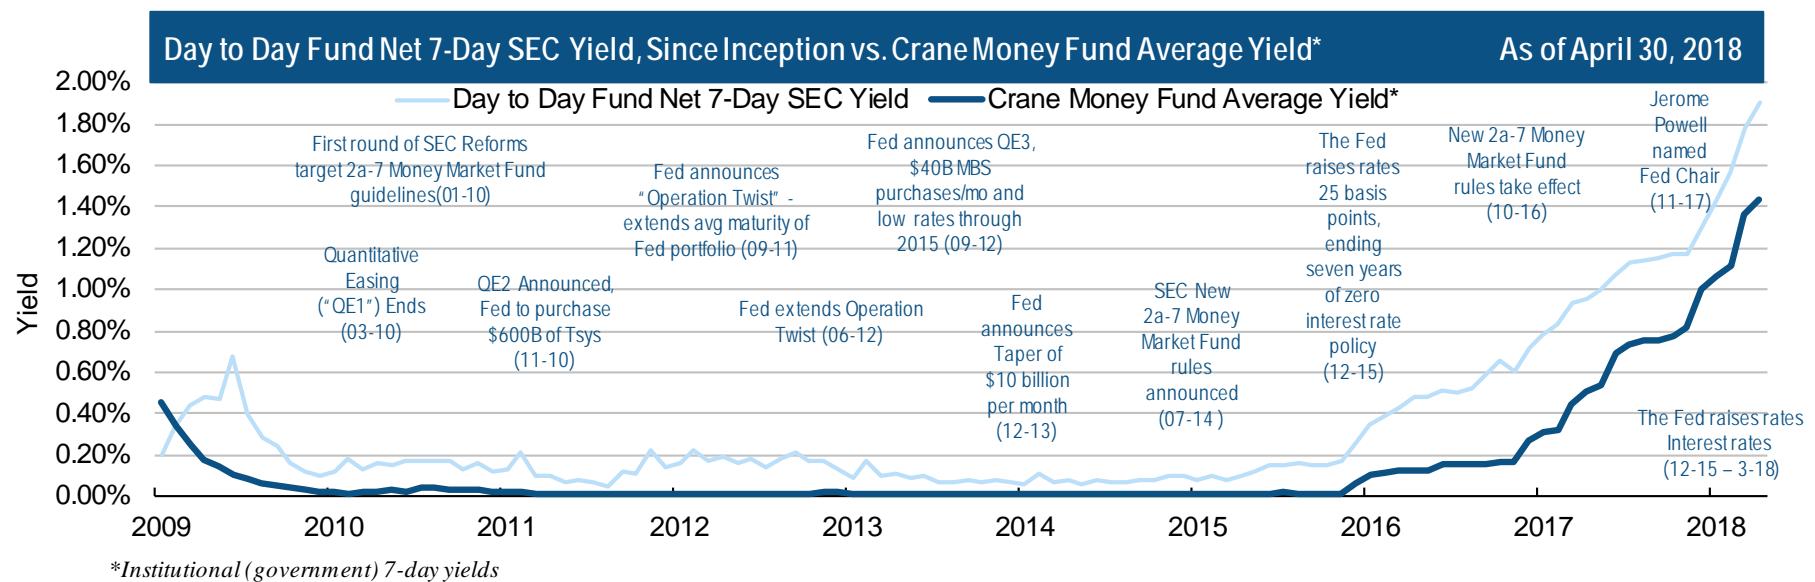

The Florida Trust Day to Day Fund posted a total return of +0.18% in April, versus the benchmark ICE BofAML Three Month Treasury Index return of +0.13%. The net 7-day SEC yield of the Day to Day Fund rose to 1.90% as of the end of April, up from 1.78% at March month end. We continue efforts to maximize portfolio yield, while still adhering to the strict investment guidelines required by Fitch to maintain the AAA rating (the fund discontinued the use the S&P rating services in March). We continue to evaluate high-quality corporate securities for the portfolio, and search for value in commercial paper and corporate notes that enhance yield and adhere to the guidelines of the fund, with a focus on liquidity.

We remain constructive on floating-rate securities as LIBOR continues to keep pace with short Treasury yields; 3-month LIBOR ended April at 2.36, up from 2.31 at March month end. During April, exposure to floating rate securities was approximately 47%; the portfolios holds floaters in corporate, agency, mortgage-backed, and Treasury sectors. Use of these securities allows addition of yield without extending interest rate risk, making them beneficial to portfolios in rising interest rate environments.

The weighted-average maturity of the portfolio ended the month at 46 days. Repurchase agreements remain a significant holding, at 27% of the portfolio. The yield available on repurchase agreements purchased for the portfolio, backed by US Treasury collateral, ranged from 164 bps to 179 bps, with an average of 168 bps during April. The fund remains highly liquid with approximately 38% of the portfolio invested in overnight and short-term securities. Additionally, 50% of the portfolio is invested in government or government guaranteed securities, also enhancing liquidity. Net redemptions were approximately $22 million in April.
