Economic and Market Commentary July 2022

The Federal Open Market Committee hiked interest rates again by 75 basis points at their July meeting bringing the target range for the federal funds rate (FFR) to 2.25-2.50%, the Committee's estimate of the long-run "neutral" rate and the peak of the previous cycle. At the post-meeting press conference, Chair Powell announced that the Committee was moving away from providing explicit forward guidance, instead opting for a meeting-by-meeting, data-dependent approach to further hikes. While markets now anticipate the FFR to peak at 3.25% in December, we continue to expect a 3.75-4.00% FFR by year-end due to more persistence in inflation.

The unemployment rate was 3.6% in June and firms added 372,000 net, new jobs to nonfarm payrolls over the month. The U.S. economy contracted at an annual rate of -0.9% in 2022 Q2. According to the Bureau of Economic Analysis, the "decrease in real GDP reflected decreases in private inventory investment, residential fixed investment, federal government spending, state and local government spending, and nonresidential fixed investment that were partly offset by increases in exports and personal consumption expenditures (PCE)." Headline consumer prices, as measured by the consumer price index (CPI), registered at 9.1% year-over-year in June. Core CPI, which excludes volatile food and energy prices, printed at 5.9% compared to 12 months ago.

Florida Trust Short Term Bond Fund

The STBF had a +0.40% gross return for July, compared to the benchmark ICE BofA 1-3 Year US Treasury index of 0.34%. Fiscal year-to-date returns for the Fund are -2.57% versus the benchmark return of -3.95%. The net 30-Day SEC Yield for the Short-Term Bond Fund rose from 1.98% at the end of June to 2.48% by July month end.

Year-to-date, historic inflation prints led to a rapid change in interest rate expectations and combined with rhetoric from the Fed, resulted in short-term interest rates moving up significantly (e.g., 6-month and 12-month Treasuries up 276 and 278 basis points, respectively). The increase in yields has equated to negative performance for all short, fixed income strategies year-to-date, among most other asset classes. Further exacerbating the negative returns were the historically low yields to start 2022 which were not sufficient to offset negative price performance. Over longer time periods, the combination of both income and active total return management should result in outperforming the yield of the portfolio, currently 2.48% (30-day net-yield), up from 0.49% at year-end. With higher yields, income earned in the portfolio gets reinvested at more favorable rates. A steeper front-end curve is positive for forward-looking total return potential.

The Florida Trust Short-Term Bond Fund continues to hold a diversified mix of sectors for income generation. We maintain an emphasis on quality and diversification and continue to hold a broad mix of credit sectors to increase portfolio income. We are beginning to take steps to increase the duration of the portfolio as we become more comfortable with interest rate outlooks, while remaining short duration overall – the defensive interest rate posture (significantly lower than benchmark interest rate duration) held throughout 2022 helped to reduce losses in the portfolio. Credit fundamentals remain strong, which should help moderate spread volatility in 2022. Short credit spreads modestly tightened in July, lending to positive performance results for the month.

The fund is assigned Fitch rating agency's highest Fund Credit Quality Rating and Fund Market Risk Sensitivity Rating of AA+/S1. The liquidity of the fund is very strong, with 34% of funds invested in Treasuries and government related securities. Withdrawals for the month were over $27 million.
