Economic and Market Commentary August 2022

The summer reprieve for risk assets is over. In August, Federal Reserve officials reiterated that the central bank's primary objective is to stop inflation, even if doing so means a higher unemployment rate. The clear message from policymakers upset equity and bond markets at the end of the month. Meanwhile, the economic data continues to be mixed. On the one hand, forward-looking indicators of growth and sentiment, such as the Purchasing Managers' Indices and the Conference Board's Leading Economic Index, pointed to an economic contraction. On the other hand, labor market data showed continued strength, with 315,000 net new jobs added in August and more than 700,000 workers returning to the labor force. Inflation data was similarly mixed. July inflation data released in August revealed that the headline consumer price index (CPI) decelerated to 8.5% year-over-year, mainly due to falling energy prices. However, core inflation, which excludes food and energy prices, remained sticky at nearly 6% year-over-year for the seventh consecutive month. President Biden signed the Inflation Reduction Act into law, which aims to reduce the deficit by $300 billion and includes a tax on stock buybacks with $369 billion earmarked for domestic energy and climate change.

Florida Trust Short Term Bond Fund

The STBF had a -0.31% gross return for August, compared to the benchmark ICE BofA 1-3 Year US Treasury index of -0.72%. Fiscal year-to-date returns for the Fund are -2.88% versus the benchmark return of -3.73%. The net 30-Day SEC Yield for the Short-Term Bond Fund rose from 2.48% at the end of July to 2.60% by August month end.

Year-to-date, historic inflation prints led to a rapid change in interest rate expectations and, combined with rhetoric from the Fed, resulted in short-term interest rates moving up significantly (e.g., 6-month and 12-month Treasuries up 315 and 311 basis points, respectively). The increase in yields has equated to negative performance for most short fixed income year-to-date, among most other asset classes. Further exacerbating the negative returns were the historically low yields to start 2022 which were not sufficient to offset negative price performance. Over longer time periods, the combination of both income and active total return management should result in outperforming the yield of the portfolio, currently 2.60% (30-day net-yield), up from 0.49% at year-end. With higher yields, income earned in the portfolio gets reinvested at more favorable rates. A steeper front-end curve is positive for forward-looking total return potential.

The Florida Trust Short-Term Bond Fund continues to hold a diversified mix of sectors for income generation. We maintain an emphasis on quality and diversification and continue to hold a broad mix of credit sectors to increase portfolio income. We will gradually take steps to increase the duration of the portfolio as we become more comfortable with interest rate trajectories, while remaining short duration overall – the defensive interest rate posture (significantly lower than benchmark interest rate duration) held throughout 2022 helped to reduce losses in the portfolio. Credit fundamentals remain strong, which should help moderate spread volatility in 2022. Short credit spreads modestly tightened in July, lending to positive performance results for the month.

The fund is assigned Fitch rating agency's highest Fund Credit Quality Rating and Fund Market Risk Sensitivity Rating of AAf/S1. The liquidity of the fund is very strong, with 36% of funds invested in Treasuries and government related securities. The fund processed about $21 million in withdrawals during the month.
