Economic and Market Commentary November 2022

The Federal Open Market Committee has aggressively hiked interest rates this year, raising its policy rate by 375 basis points (starting at zero), including the fourth consecutive 75 bps rate hike delivered at the November FOMC meeting. As of November month end, the median policymaker now expects a 4.50-4.75% Federal Funds Rate at the end of 2023, meaning the Fed intends to hit its “terminal” policy rate and to keep rates high longer than most market participants expect (the Fed Funds futures market predicts interest rate cuts in late 2023). Fed Chair Powell said that the Fed still “has a way to go to reach sufficiently restrictive levels” of rates and advised that it is “very premature” to discuss pausing rate hikes. All told, the Fed may step down the pace of hikes (say, from 75 to 50 bps) but end up at a higher “terminal rate” (Payden view: 5.25 - 5.50%) and keep rates higher for longer than the bond market currently imagines.

In November, the yield on the 2-year Treasury note fell 17 basis points to 4.31%. The yield on the benchmark 10-year Treasury fell 44 bps to 3.61%. The yield on the 30-year Treasury fell 43 bps to 3.74%. Corporate spreads tightened in November. Short-duration corporates (1-3 year) tightened 21 bps to 91 basis points. U.S. Q3 GDP was revised up to 2.9% annualized growth from 2.6% as first reported, breaking the 2-quarter trend of negative growth.

The unemployment rate was 3.7% in October, rising from 3.5% previously. October nonfarm payrolls increased 261,000 (est. 193,000) vs. a revised 315,000 in September (originally up 263,000). Headline consumer prices, as measured by the consumer price index (CPI), registered at 7.7% year-over-year in October. Core CPI, which excludes volatile food and energy prices, printed at 6.3% compared to 12 months ago. Market participants interpreted this as an improvement in the inflation picture - September CPI was 8.2%, with Core CPI at 6.6%. Markets hoped for a possible pause or shortening of the Fed rate hiking cycle, resulting in the large decline in yields during the month. Members of the FOMC have since cautioned against reliance on one data point.

Florida Trust Short Term Bond Fund

The STBF had a +0.69% gross return and a +0.64% NAV return for November compared to the benchmark ICE BofA 1-3 Year US Treasury index of +0.63%. The net 30-Day SEC Yield for the Short-Term Bond Fund rose from 3.68% at the end of October to 3.98% as of November month end. Higher yields will help to cushion the STBF from further increases in interest rates.

Year-to-date, historic inflation prints led to a rapid change in interest rate expectations and combined with rhetoric from the Federal Reserve (“Fed”), resulted in short-term interest rates moving up significantly (e.g., 6-month and 12-month Treasuries up 447 and 431 basis points (“bps”), respectively). The increase in yields has equated to negative performance for most fixed income funds year-to-date, among most other asset classes. Further exacerbating the negative returns were the historically low yields to start 2022 which were not sufficient to offset negative price performance. Over longer time periods, the combination of income-earned and active total return management should result in returns outperforming the yield of the portfolio, 3.98% as of 11/30 (30-day net-yield), up from 0.49% at 2021 year-end. With higher yields, income earned in the portfolio gets reinvested at more favorable rates. A steeper front-end curve is positive for forward-looking total return potential.

The Florida Trust Short-Term Bond Fund continues to hold a diversified mix of sectors for income generation. We maintain an emphasis on quality and diversification and continue to hold a broad mix of credit sectors to increase portfolio income. We will gradually take steps to increase the duration of the portfolio as we become more comfortable with interest rate trajectories, while remaining short duration overall – the defensive interest rate posture (significantly lower than benchmark interest rate duration) held throughout 2022 helped to reduce losses in the portfolio. Credit fundamentals remain strong, which should help moderate spread volatility in 2022.

The fund is assigned Fitch rating agency’s highest Fund Credit Quality Rating and Fund Market Risk Sensitivity Rating of AAAf/S1. The liquidity of the fund is very strong, with 33% of funds invested in Treasuries and government related securities. There were no contributions or redemptions in the fund during the month.
