Economic and Market Commentary April 2023

In April, financial markets faced turbulence due to two primary factors: persistent concerns about the banking system's stability and the looming U.S. debt ceiling issue. First, the collapse of another major bank in April dashed hopes that the previous month's bank runs were isolated incidents. Although markets have downplayed systemic risk concerns as the FDIC and Federal Reserve continue to offer support, potential hazards persist. Second, bond investors' apprehension over the debt ceiling is reflected in the significant yield spread between generic 1-month and 3-month Treasury bills. This disparity highlights investor preference for bills maturing within the next month and their reluctance to engage with those expiring around when the Treasury might face a cash crunch this summer (if the debt ceiling is not raised). While investors eagerly anticipate guidance from Congress, a resolution to the debt ceiling issue remains uncertain. Despite these challenges, the resilient U.S. labor market (a 3.5% unemployment rate in April) sustained hopes for a "soft landing," boosting equities and riskier bond market sectors.

Federal Reserve officials indicated that another rate hike is likely at the May meeting, and indeed came through with a 0.25% hike, for a 5.00-5.25% target range for the federal funds. By month-end, market expectations still pointed towards 50 bps of cuts by year-end 2023, which would be a quick reversal after more than a year of monetary policy tightening. With core PCE stuck at 4.5-5.0% year-over-year for four consecutive quarters through Q1 2023, such predictions might be premature. The Fed wants more evidence of an inflation slowdown before it declares victory. In our view, it's more likely the Fed "pauses" at 5.25%, keeping rates in "restrictive territory" for the balance of the year rather than cutting rates by year-end.

Florida Trust Short Term Bond Fund

The STBF had a +0.39% total return for April compared to the benchmark ICE BofA 1-3 Year US Treasury index of +0.26%. Fiscal year 2023 is off to a positive start, with the fiscal year-todate total return for the STBF +2.68% compared to +2.56% for the benchmark. The net 30-Day SEC Yield for the Short-Term Bond Fund was 4.03% on 4/30, up from 3.93% as of the year end.

Over longer time periods, the combination of income earned, and active total return management should result in returns outperforming the yield of the portfolio. With the higher yields currently available to investors, income earned in the portfolio gets reinvested at more favorable rates. With higher starting yields, the carry, or income earned, of the portfolio provides a larger buffer against any further increase in interest rates.

The STBF remains conservative with ample liquidity and an up-in-quality diversified mix of credit sectors for income generation. We continue to favor a healthy allocation to liquidity and a defensive positioning in corporates, and floating rate securities where available. The current volatility in the market has led to wider spreads in front-end corporates. The fund remains in a modestly defensive duration position - the duration of the fund is 1.6 years, versus the index of 1.8. While we look to extend duration, it is more challenging with an inverted yield curve: the fund would give up some yield to extend duration (e.g., by purchasing 2- or 3-year Treasuries versus a 3- or 6- month Treasury). Over the next few months, we believe we should be able to move closer to neutral. Given the recent volatility, we are keeping a focus on liquidity. Current pricing for Fed cuts is likely too aggressive and, in our view, policy rates are likely to remain near current levels for longer than current market expectations. This backdrop is likely to result in continued market volatility as the market continues to parse the impact of tighter financial conditions, negative growth pressures, and continued restrictive monetary policy.

The fund is assigned Fitch rating agency's highest Fund Credit Quality Rating and Fund Market Risk Sensitivity Rating of AAAf/S1. The liquidity of the fund is very strong, with 32% of funds invested in Treasuries and government related securities. There were no deposits or withdrawals in April.
