Economic and Market Commentary May 2024

In the U.S., the yield on the US 2-year Treasury note fell 17 basis points (bps) over the month to end at 4.87%. The yield on the benchmark 10-year Treasury fell bps to 4.50%, up from 4.20% at the end of March. The yield on the 30-year Treasury fell 13 bps to 4.65%.

In May, the U.S. labor market remained tight while inflation progress stagnated. Although the U.S. unemployment rate ticked up to 3.9%, the three-month average of net nonfarm payroll employment growth remained at a solid pace of 242,000. Meanwhile, after three months of uncomfortable month-over-month increases, the core Personal Consumption Expenditures (PCE) Price Index, which excludes volatile food and energy prices, increased a more welcomed 0.25% month-over-month in April. However, the year-over-year core PCE rate has stagnated around 2.8% for three months, as services prices continue to increase at a rate well above their historical average.

In May, Federal Reserve Governor Christopher Waller clarified that the Fed needs to see three to five months of “good” monthly inflation readings that round to 0.2% to be comfortable with rate cuts. Moreover, Waller reflected that while the April inflation data suggested progress in cooling inflation after a quarter of strong readings, the progress remains small. On the other hand, markets priced in close to two rate cuts by December 2024 after the softer April inflation reports. However, if the current monthly trend persists, core inflation could rise to 3.3% year-over-year by December due to worsening base effects. Consequently, as Waller has reiterated in his speech, “A cut doesn’t have to happen in this calendar year.”

Florida Trust Short Term Bond Fund

The STBF posted a +0.68% total return for May compared to the benchmark ICE BofA 1-3 Year US Treasury index of +0.69%. Short-fixed income returns were positive across all sectors in May as yields generally decreased and spreads narrowed; total returns and excess returns year-to-date remain strong. The fiscal year-to-date total return for the STBF is +3.83% compared to +3.17% for the benchmark. The net 30-Day SEC Yield for the Short-Term Bond Fund was 4.69% on 5/31, compared to 4.61% as of 2023-year end.

The STBF remains well-positioned with ample liquidity and an up-in-quality diversified mix of credit sectors for income generation, and we continue to utilize new issuance to optimize allocations, funding with Treasuries. Within corporates, we continue to actively participate in finance-related new issue, with May setting another overall monthly issuance record. Within securitized, tight spreads require a search for pockets of opportunity in select subsectors and deals such as equipment loans.

The fund has a headline duration of 1.56 years, versus the index duration of 1.84. The fund holds a 12% allocation to floating rate securities. These bonds enhance the overall yield of the fund – these positions have an average yield of 6.7%, but do not contribute to duration / interest rate risk. With credit spreads trading toward the lower band of their historical spread levels, we remain patient. We continue to opportunistically rotate positions based on specific security valuations.

Messaging from the Federal Reserve indicates we may expect rate cuts in late 2024. Current duration (interest rate risk) positioning should help the fund outperform the Treasury benchmark as the Fed starts cutting rates likely later this year. In addition, the still-inverted yield curve means shorter Treasury securities are currently more attractive, yield-wise, versus longer options. Still, as we consider reinvestment risk – rates may stay higher for some time, but lower rates are on the horizon - investing in non-Treasury sectors can offer comparable or higher yields.

The STBF is assigned Fitch rating agency's highest Fund Credit Quality Rating and Fund Market Risk Sensitivity Rating of AAAf/S1. The liquidity of the fund is very strong, with 28% of funds invested in Treasuries and government related securities. There were no participant flows in or out of the fund in May.
