Economic and Market Commentary October 2025

The Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) concluded its October meeting by cutting the federal funds rate by 25 basis points(“bps”), which was largely priced into markets. The yield on the 2-year Treasury note fell four bps to 3.57%. The yield on the benchmark 10-year Treasury fell seven bps to 4.08%. The yield on the 30-year Treasury fell eight bps to 4.65%.

October’s economic data provided mixed signals. While economic activity appears to be accelerating, the labor market slowed, and inflation cooled. U.S. economic growth is tracking at a 3.9% quarterly annualized rate for the third quarter, following a 1.6% annualized pace in the first half of 2025. Meanwhile, the U.S. labor market presents a different picture. According to private data provider ADP, over the three months ending in September, the U.S. economy added an average of only 23,000 private jobs, well below the pace at the beginning of the year. On the inflation front, the core consumer price index (CPI) edged down to 3.0% year-over-year in September. Disinflation in housing and non-housing services continues at a moderating pace, offsetting tariff-driven price increases in goods.

The FOMC vote was 10-2 in favor of the rate cut, with Governor Miran advocating for a 50 bp reduction, and Kansas City Fed President Schmid preferring to hold steady. This rare two-sided dissent led Chair Powell to push back on market expectations of a guaranteed 25 bp rate cut in December. In Chair Powell's words, as policymakers drive through the mixed-signal data and “fog” caused by the government shutdown, it makes sense to “drive slower.” However, in our view, the risks of a weaker labor market still outweigh the potential upside risk to inflation. Therefore, we expect the Fed to continue to move toward a neutral rate of 3% by year-end 2026. Finally, the Fed will end its Treasury securities balance sheet runoff in December 2025 and reinvest agency securities proceeds into Treasury bills, aiming for a portfolio primarily of U.S. Treasuries.

Florida Trust Short Term Bond Fund

Short fixed income returns – both total returns and excess returns - were positive across nearly all sectors in October, continuing a strong year as short-term yields decreased, and spreads widened slightly. The Treasury yield curve flattened in an asymmetrical manor in October, as the market digested a second rate cut and solidified expectations for additional easing into 2026. The STBF posted a +0.31% total return for October, in line with the benchmark ICE BofA 1-3 Year US Treasury index, which returned 0.34%. Calendar year-to-date, the STBF has returned +4.68% versus 4.28% for the benchmark.

The STBF remains well-positioned as we continue to invest in a high-quality tilt and a diversified mix of credit, with ample liquidity, and a neutral to modestly long duration position. The STBF is poised to potentially outperform shorter, money market-like options as the Fed looks to continue to ease policy and cut interest rates, and we can take advantage of yield curve opportunities as the curve is expected to return to a positive slope. As the yield curve normalizes there will be opportunity for positive bond price performance in addition to the attractive income return offered by the STBF.

With narrow risk premiums in both the corporate and securitized markets, continue to target higher quality issuers without reaching for yield. However, with expectations of solid economic growth as the backdrop, we are comfortable with overall risk exposure to the corporate and securitized markets. We continue to position the STBF with a neutral to modestly overweight duration posture versus the benchmark as current policy rates remain above our estimate of neutral - providing room for rates to fall further. The timing, pace and magnitude of cuts continues to be important for investors to gauge over the rest of the year.

The STBF is assigned Fitch rating agency’s highest Fund Credit Quality Rating and Fund Market Risk Sensitivity Rating of AAAf/S1. The net 30-Day SEC Yield for the fund was 3.87% at month end, compared to 4.31% as of 2024-year end. The liquidity of the fund is strong, with 32% of funds invested in Treasuries and government related securities. Net cash flows in October were -$5.3 million.
